- National Scientific and Professional seminar entitled Forest pedagogy in kindergarten conditions, where teachers of kindergarten learned a lot of information on the topic and also practically experienced the connection of theory with practice. Information and knowledge from the webinars and from the study of the prepared and offered materials, the teachers could use in their work with children and their parents during the pandemic

- World Play Day - 100 kindergartens and approximately 2,500 children participated in the World Day of Action. This day we celebrated, of course, with individual, group and collective games right in the kindergartens schools or children with their parents at home. A call was made for kindergartens to join in the creation of a collection of the most interesting and successful games and ways of celebrating this day.
